

Amy-Jill Levine is University Professor of New Testament and Jewish Studies, E. Rhodes and Leona B. Carpenter Professor of New Testament Studies, and Professor of Jewish Studies at Vanderbilt University Divinity School and College of Arts and Science in Nashville, TN; she is also Affiliated Professor, Centre for the Study of Jewish-Christian Relations, Cambridge UK. Holding the B.A. from Smith College, and the M.A. and Ph.D. from Duke University, she has honorary doctorates from the University of Richmond, the Episcopal Theological Seminary of the Southwest, the University of South Carolina-Upstate, Drury University, and Christian Theological Seminary.

Her recent books include The Meaning of the Bible: What the Jewish Scriptures and the Christian Old Testament Can Teach Us, co-authored with Douglas Knight (HarperOne) and The Jewish Annotated New Testament, co-edited with Marc Brettler (Oxford). A self-described Yankee Jewish feminist, Professor Levine puts her scholarship in the service of preventing anti-Jewish, sexist, and homophobic biblical interpretation. She is a member of Congregation Sherith Israel, an Orthodox Synagogue, although she is often quite unorthodox.
